

CALL MR. ROBESON: A life, with songs.

Written and Performed by Tayo Aluko, with Michael Conliffe, Piano

Cumbernauld Theatre. Friday March 30, 2012

Greetings and Welcome. The people of Bradford spoke last night. They chose as their next Member of Parliament the one man I have repeatedly described as the only person that readily comes to mind when I try to think of someone who is as reviled and unpopular as Paul Robeson was in his time, not for doing anything wrong, but for saying things that the government don't want to hear. It was he that almost uniquely in Tony Blair's New Labour Party that repeatedly shouted that going to war in Iraq would be illegal and counterproductive. He was labelled disloyal to the party and cast out by its leaders. He was described as anti-British for championing the cause of those would destroy the peaceful and democratic way of life of the White West. He showed himself more than ready to defend himself robustly in front of the American Senate. Now, to the chagrin of the political elite, he has been vindicated by the ordinary people, just like Paul Robeson was. In fact, the only difference between George and Paul (as far as I know) is that he isn't a wonderful singer. Or a great actor. Or a formidable sportsman. That would be almost superhuman, which is in fact what Paul Robeson was, and why people smaller than him sought to diminish his standing. Nonetheless, it is necessary to look to people like these for inspiration to get us out of the terrible times we find ourselves in today. It is up to the ordinary people to see through the elites' selfish rhetoric to demand and effect the kind of change that would lead to a more peaceful, just and equitable society. As Paul Robeson repeatedly said in his time, and has been demonstrated by the emergence of Barack Obama (and the subsequent confirmation of the limits to his power), we the ordinary people would do well to remember that we do have power, and can exercise it by standing up for the oppressed and the exploited against the one per cent who would have us believe that we should trust them with the future of the world. I hope you enjoy show.

Tayo Aluko. Writer, Performer, Producer. Tayo was born in Nigeria, and now lives in Liverpool. He worked until recently as an architect and property developer, with a special but as yet frustrated interest in eco-friendly construction. As a baritone, he has sung as soloist in British concert halls accompanied by orchestra, and has also sung in Germany, Ireland and Nigeria. He has performed lead roles in such operas and musicals as Nabucco, Kiss Me Kate and Anything Goes. CALL MR ROBESON won the Argus Angel Award for Artistic Excellence and Best Male Performer Award at the 2008 Brighton Festival Fringe, and two Merit Awards for Excellence in London in 2010. He has performed the play around the UK, the United States of America, Canada and Nigeria, and at New York's Carnegie Hall in February 2012 for his 50th birthday. His other piece titled FROM BLACK AFRICA TO THE WHITE HOUSE: a talk about Black Political Resistance, illustrated with Spirituals has also been performed in three continents. He researched, wrote and narrated to camera a piece on West African History before the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade, which forms part of the permanent exhibit at Liverpool's International Slavery Museum. A song from his CD, RECALLING ROBESON is featured as the July 2008 song of the month on the Labor Notes website.

Michael Conliffe, Piano and original incidental music

Mike started playing piano by ear as child, playing gospel in church and later discovering Jazz, which he went on to study at Liverpool Community College and Leeds college of Music. As well as playing regularly in Jazz festivals round the UK, Mike has toured both coasts of America with Call Mr Robeson, culminating in the February 2012 performance at Carnegie Hall with Tayo. Mike also performs in another two-hander, a Jazz drama God Bless the Child about Billie Holliday, in which he also acts. He plays regularly as soloist and with Swing and Function bands at weddings, other celebrations and at corporate events. Mike also teaches piano to aspiring Pop, Blues and Jazz musicians and to singer/song writers.
