

CALL MR. ROBESON: A life, with songs.

Written and Performed by Tayo Aluko, with Michael Conliffe, Piano

The Guildhall, Grantham, Wednesday April 24, 2013.

Greetings, and Welcome. I was worried, coming here only a week after Margaret Thatcher's funeral, that the world's media might still be around, but thankfully they've moved on. Maggie certainly moved a long way in her lifetime – from being born in a grocer's shop here in Grantham to dying in a luxury suite at the Ritz in London. Her tenure as Prime Minister (and friendship with some of the richest and most powerful people in the world) probably helped along the way, but so too did “marrying well”, as her husband Denis was already a millionaire when they married in the late 50s. He was much more reserved than she, but the same can't be said about Paul Robeson's wife, Eslanda. A feisty woman who travelled even more than her famous husband, including trips around Africa with her son in the 30s. She saw colonialism at first hand there, and was moved to start up the Council on African Affairs with her husband and others, and to write and campaign prolifically for independence and self-governance for African people. She would eventually be followed around Africa decades later by MI6, and her activities were described as “dangerous” in their reports to their American counterparts. She had trained as a chemist, became an anthropologist and a prolific author, and covered the founding of the United Nations as a journalist. She met, interviewed and befriended future leaders such as Gandhi and Nehru, and African ones like Jomo Kenyatta and leading members of the ANC. Her civil rights campaigning in the USA on behalf of Blacks and women matched her husband's, and all these activities got her into almost as much trouble as him. It is conceivable that Margaret Thatcher, had they been contemporaries, might have labelled her a terrorist, as she did Nelson Mandela, but history would have proved her wrong on that score too. So, as Grantham contemplates commemorating her most famous daughter with a statue (indoor, for fear of vandalism) may I be so bold as to recommend a recently released biography for the local libraries and for private bookshelves: Eslanda: The Large and Unconventional Life of Mrs. Paul Robeson, by Barbara Ransby. I would argue that her life story is one that is really inspiring, and that she is a woman who really deserves to be remembered and celebrated. I hope you enjoy the show.

Tayo Aluko. Writer, Performer, Producer. Tayo was born in Nigeria, and now lives in Liverpool. He worked until recently as an architect and property developer, with a special but frustrated interest in eco-friendly construction. He has fronted orchestras as baritone soloist in British concert halls, and has also sung in Germany, Ireland and Nigeria. He has performed lead roles in such operas and musicals as Nabucco, Kiss Me Kate and Anything Goes. CALL MR ROBESON won the Argus Angel Award for Artistic Excellence and Best Male Performer Award at the 2008 Brighton Festival Fringe, two Merit Awards for Excellence in London in 2010 and three awards at the London Ontario Fringe last June. He has performed the play around the UK, the United States of America, Canada and Nigeria, and at New York's Carnegie Hall in February 2012 for his 50th birthday. His other piece titled FROM BLACK AFRICA TO THE WHITE HOUSE - a talk about Black Political Resistance, illustrated with Spirituals has also been performed in three continents. He researched, wrote and narrated to camera a piece on West African History before the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade, which forms part of the permanent exhibit at Liverpool's International Slavery Museum. His 15-minute play, HALF MOON, which also deals with ancient Africa has been performed several times in the UK.

Michael Conliffe, Piano and original incidental music.

Mike started playing piano by ear as child, playing gospel in church and later discovering Jazz, which he went on to study at Liverpool Community College and Leeds college of Music. As well as playing regularly in Jazz festivals round the UK, Mike has toured both coasts of America with Call Mr Robeson, culminating in the February 2012 performance at Carnegie Hall with Tayo. Mike also performs in another two-hander, a Jazz drama God Bless the Child about Billie Holliday. He plays regularly as soloist and with Swing and Function bands at weddings, other celebrations and at corporate events. Mike also teaches piano to aspiring Pop, Blues and Jazz musicians and to singer/song writers.
