

CALL MR. ROBESON: A life, with songs.

Written and Performed by Tayo Aluko, with Martin Robinson, Piano
Edge Hill Arts Centre, Ormskirk. Thursday, October 13, 2016

Greetings, Welcome. There are a great many people (me included) who believe that Paul Robeson is one of the greatest Americans that ever lived. It will surprise many of you that it once suggested that he run for Vice President, under the Progressive Party ticket, in 1948. He declined, but strongly supported the party and the Presidential candidacy of Henry Wallace. The Progressives, one of whose policies was to foster better relations with the Soviet Union, barely registered in that year's polling, and the Cold War picked up pace. As we hear calls for protests outside the Russian Embassy in a bid to place the blame for the disastrous situation in Syria firmly at the door of the Russian President (and prepare for war), another attempt is being made to wipe out decades of history that will explain, among other things, why so many Syrians are are risking their lives daily to swell the ranks of the homeless on Britain's streets. Looking across the Atlantic at the American Presidential race (we have to because the outcome affects us all) we feel no envy toward the Americans for the choice they have to make, but we can maybe take some hope from the fact that ugly as things might look right now, that country has been even uglier in the past, but the people have triumphed. We only need to remember the institution of legalised slavery, and the Apartheid system that birthed the modern civil rights movement. While we here don't have to choose between a racist megalomaniac and a woman who has difficulty in understanding the concept of peace and justice, and who seemingly has a massive credibility deficiency, one can take solace in the fact that there are many others who will be there to "hold their feet to the fire," however successfully the mainstream media keep such people out of the limelight. How many people know that there is another woman running for President, and that her running mate is a Black man? That's the American Green Party, today's equivalent of yesteryear's Progressive Party. The two mainstream parties have conspired (there's no other word for it) for this party to be refused a look-in during this charade that they call democracy, but small independent outlets continue to spread their message. As Robeson's story tells us nearly seventy years after his near-run for VP, there are many far better people whom we should trust with our future than those that purport to lead us now, and we would do well to seek them out, hear their messages and support them. I hope you enjoy the show.

Tayo Aluko. Writer, Performer. Tayo was born in Nigeria, and now lives in Liverpool. He worked previously as an architect and property developer, with a special but as yet frustrated interest in eco-friendly construction. He has fronted orchestras as baritone soloist in concert halls, and has also performed lead roles in such operas and musicals as Nabucco, Kiss Me Kate and Anything Goes. CALL MR ROBESON has won numerous awards at festivals in the UK and Canada, as well as highly favourable reviews in the press – most notably in the Guardian and on BBC Radio 4. He has toured the play around the UK, the USA, Canada, Jamaica and Nigeria, including New York's Carnegie Hall in 2012. He delivers a lecture/concert called PAUL ROBESON – THE GIANT, IN A NUTSHELL. Another one titled FROM BLACK AFRICA TO THE WHITE HOUSE: a talk about Black Political Resistance, illustrated with spirituals has been performed in three continents. He researched, wrote and narrated to camera a piece on West African History before the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade, which forms part of the permanent exhibit at Liverpool's International Slavery Museum. His 15-minute play, HALF MOON, which also deals with ancient Africa has been performed several times in the UK. He has developed a piece titled WHAT HAPPENS? featuring the writings of African American Langston Hughes, for performance with live jazz accompaniment. He has been published in The Guardian, The Morning Star, NERVE Magazine, Modern Ghana and Searchlight Magazine. His new play JUST AN ORDINARY LAWYER premiered at the Edinburgh Fringe in August 2016.

Martin Robinson, Piano and original incidental music. Martin Robinson has wide experience playing as pianist for choirs and soloists. On saxophone and keyboards he has played throughout Britain and in Europe with his own jazz band, Skokiaan, and with Mamadou Diaw and other bands and singers. He is delighted to be working with Tayo Aluko on a show with such a strong message.
