

CALL MR. ROBESON: A life, with songs.

Written and Performed by Tayo Aluko, with Michael Conliffe, Piano Tristan Bates Theatre, Covent Garden, Thursday 3 October, 2013.

Greetings, and Welcome. Something significant happened yesterday that was not reported in the mainstream media either here or in the USA, and that was that Herman Wallace, a 71-year old African American was released from the infamous Angola Prison where he had spent 42 years in solitary confinement, and taken to a hospital in New Orleans to live out the last remaining hours or days of his life. He is dying from advanced liver cancer. His conviction had been overturned and his trial, back in the 1970s declared unconstitutional. His crime? Starting a chapter of the Black Panther Party in prison. He and two others were framed for a murder and sentenced to life in solitary confinement. Nelson Mandela's prison term was a little over half of that. Whilst Mr. Wallace's case is tragic, his supporters see it as a victory against what can be described as state tyranny and terrorism, in a country that goes around the world fighting wars supposedly to promote democracy. It will hopefully become as clear to many more American people as it is to people all over the world that as their country's democracy is currently totally dysfunctional, their leaders' justifications for meddling in the affairs of other nations are as hollow today as they have ever been. There is perhaps no more straightforward way of showing how and why Paul Robeson's life, struggles and ideas are relevant to today's world, however many superficial differences there may be in his country from his time to ours. As Herman Wallace's life ebbs away, he joins the heroic band of ancestors whose life stories remind us that the best way for us to honour them is to take inspiration from their victories and continue the struggles that they fought. Scores of political prisoners remain victims of the prison-industrial complex, including figures like Albert Woodfox (the last of the Angola 3), Mumia Abu-Jamal and Leonard Peltier. In the same way, here in the UK, Julian Assange remains holed up in the Ecuadorian Embassy, and those that dare speak out on behalf of people like these risk being ostracised themselves. As Robeson's and Wallace's cases show, the fear of ostracism (or even death) won't prevent the bravest of men and women from using their very lives as weapons in struggles for peace, freedom and justice. I hope you enjoy the show.

Tayo Aluko. Writer, Performer. Tayo was born in Nigeria, and now lives in Liverpool. He worked previously as an architect and property developer, with a special but frustrated interest in eco-friendly construction. He has fronted orchestras as baritone soloist in British concert halls, and has also performed lead roles in such operas and musicals as Nabucco, Kiss Me Kate and Anything Goes. CALL MR ROBESON won three awards at the London Ontario Fringe in June 2012 and Best Solo Show at the Stratford UK Fringe this June. He has performed the play around the UK, Canada, Nigeria, Jamaica and the USA (including New York's Carnegie Hall in February 2012). His other piece titled FROM BLACK AFRICA TO THE WHITE HOUSE - a talk about Black Political Resistance, illustrated with Spirituals, has also been performed on three continents. He researched, wrote and narrated to camera a piece on West African History before the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade, which forms part of the permanent exhibit at Liverpool's International Slavery Museum. His 15-minute play, HALF MOON, which also deals with ancient Africa, has been performed several times in the UK.

Michael Conliffe, Piano and original incidental music.

Mike started playing piano by ear as child, playing gospel in church and later discovering Jazz, which he went on to study at Liverpool Community College and Leeds college of Music. As well as playing regularly in Jazz festivals round the UK, Mike has toured both coasts of America with Call Mr Robeson, culminating in the February 2012 performance at Carnegie Hall with Tayo. Mike also performs in another two-hander, a Jazz drama God Bless the Child about Billie Holliday. He plays regularly as soloist and with Swing and Function bands at weddings, other celebrations and at corporate events. Mike also teaches piano to aspiring Pop, Blues and Jazz musicians and to singer/song writers.
