

CALL MR. ROBESON: A life, with songs.

Written and Performed by Tayo Aluko, with Jonathan Jarvis, Piano
Grange Hall, Radcliffe-on-Trent. Sunday, March 20, 2016

Greetings, Welcome. On both sides of the Atlantic, mainstream parties of the right are in disarray. Over here, the sensational resignation of a heavy-weight cabinet member has sent shock waves through the Tory Party. He said the recent disability benefits cuts were to blame, ignoring the fact that he was himself responsible for several benefits cuts in his time. Across the pond, it is the popularity of a racist billionaire that is threatening to cause a major political earthquake in the GOP. The bigger problem is the fact that office of President has such major implications for the rest of the world, so the ridiculous spectacle that is the race for the party's nomination is of interest to the rest of us. We watch in horror as a man openly, unashamedly and repeatedly spreading hate continues to surge in the polls. Few in my own circles will be shedding tears for these parties, and if one is to find positives in any of this, it is the fact that there does seem to be agreement even within their ranks that things are going too far, and that earlier calls for restraint should perhaps have been heeded after all. Such warnings are nothing new. Going back as far as the 1940s, Paul Robeson warned that "the absence of peace in the world is due precisely to the efforts of American, British and other imperialist powers to retain control over the peoples of Asia, the Middle East, Europe and Africa." He also warned about the rise of fascism in his time. Seventy years later we are witnessing the sad truth of those warnings, yet those that are today's Robesons continue to be ignored, sidelined, or in too many cases, jailed or even assassinated. The most recent high-profile (and under-reported) assassinations took place in Honduras, where two indigenous environmentalists protesting against mass evacuations of their people and the plunder of their lands for international mining and other interests, were gunned down in the last two weeks. The protests within Honduras and beyond are such that two European banks have recently announced that they are withdrawing from funding a major dam construction project there. When we hear also that Barclays are ceasing to provide services to an "arms dealer/philanthropist" (?) we can choose see these as further signs of hope that the kind of sense that Robeson spoke is beginning to penetrate even the most unlikely of citadels. We all however must continue to keep up the pressure. I hope you enjoy the show.

Tayo Aluko. Writer, Performer. Tayo was born in Nigeria, and now lives in Liverpool. He worked previously as an architect and property developer, with a special but as yet frustrated interest in eco-friendly construction. He has fronted orchestras as baritone soloist in concert halls, and has also performed lead roles in such operas and musicals as Nabucco, Kiss Me Kate and Anything Goes. CALL MR ROBESON has won numerous awards at festivals in the UK and Canada, as well as highly favourable reviews in the press – most notably in the Guardian and on BBC Radio 4. He has toured the play around the UK, the USA, Canada, Jamaica and Nigeria, and at New York's Carnegie Hall in February 2012 on his 50th birthday. He also delivers a lecture/concert called PAUL ROBESON – THE GIANT, IN A NUTSHELL, and another one titled FROM BLACK AFRICA TO THE WHITE HOUSE: a talk about Black Political Resistance, illustrated with spirituals has been performed in three continents. He researched, wrote and narrated to camera a piece on West African History before the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade, which forms part of the permanent exhibit at Liverpool's International Slavery Museum. His 15-minute play, HALF MOON, which also deals with ancient Africa has been performed several times in the UK. He recently developed a piece titled WHAT HAPPENS? featuring the writings of African American Langston Hughes, for performance with live jazz accompaniment. He has been published in The Guardian, The Morning Star, NERVE Magazine, Modern Ghana and Searchlight Magazine. He is currently working on a new play.

Jonathan Jarvis, Piano. Jonathan read Music at the University of Huddersfield, majoring in solo performance. In 2014, he toured to Rotterdam with the University Big Band, and also played with the University Symphonic Wind Orchestra, who performed one of his own arrangements as part of their concert series. Jonathan repertoured for several established amateur musical societies including the Huddersfield Gilbert and Sullivan Society and the Halifax All Souls Amateur Operatic and Dramatic Society. He has been heavily involved with the Music for Youth Festival, appearing at the Royal Albert Hall on three occasions with award-winning big band, Jazz Vehicle.
